A NOTE FROM ONE OF OUR MOTHERSThe Strength of a Mother

They say a mother's work is never done, and I really hope that's true. Sure, there have been days when the tasks at hand seem insurmountable, yet each difficult stage makes way for moments that fill your heart with so much love and pride you really do think it might burst.

But it was on those difficult days that I wondered ~ still wonder, actually ~ if I would make it from one stage to the next and wondered just what God had in store for me. So I started praying for strength.

*"I can do all things through Him who strengthens me."
 (Philippians 4:13)*

That verse came to me at the perfect time, as Bible verses tend to do, and has since become not only my maternal mantra, but my mantra in life. Of course we all need His strength, but sometimes moms need an extra dose.

His strength has lifted me through colicky babies, defiant toddlers, and precocious teens. His strength has also allowed me to be a pillar during health issues, marital rough patches, and on those days when I'm being pulled in so many directions that it just hurts. Yes, I can do all things through Him who strengthens me.

But somewhere along the line, something clicked. As I continually prayed for strength, I came to realize that His strength is always there, just not always visible. I've always been told that strength comes from within, but knowing and believing are two different things. Being able to feel His warm embrace has given me a confidence, a sense of peace ~ and yes, strength ~ that I never knew existed.

That realization has made me a better mother, wife, and daughter. It has helped me weather those difficult times with a sense of calm (although age might play a role in that, too). It has helped me recognize my shortcomings and celebrate the successes. It has helped me realize that yes, indeed, God had a plan for me, and that I don't thank him nearly enough for giving me three beautiful children. And it has helped me realize that I still have a lot of work to do, which is why I hope ~ actually, I believe ~ that a mother's work is never done.

Yes, I can do all things through Him who strengthens me.

Happy Mother's Day!

A Face only a Mother could Love

If someone told you, "You have a face only a mother could love," this might not be a compliment. The only time it seems nice is when your own mother says it. I remember being covered head to toe with pig manure and my Mom said something to the effect of, when looking like I did, only a mother could love me. This, of course, was followed by a smile and a laugh just before she told me to clean up. Mothers often have such a bond with their children it doesn't matter much what the face looks like.

Our Mother Mary must have felt like this when her dead son lay in her arms. The look of death along with the remnants of torture must have made our Lord's human face nearly unbearable to look at. Yet it would be pretty easy to imagine that Mary loved Jesus even more as she saw his face. Even if Mary knew the plan of salvation, this would still have been most difficult. She was warned by Simeon at the temple that a dagger would enter her heart and I'm sure she felt that in this tender moment. Her love for Jesus is unconditional.

The Blessed Virgin Mary also has unconditional love for us. She continues to shower us with her love as she lives out the purpose of her life. That is to lead us to her Son. Devotion to Mary is great in helping to build one's faith. Today, at the 8am and 10am Masses in the WCC, we will crown Mary Queen of Heaven. What happens on these days is a time honored tradition. The rosary is also a wonderful way for individuals, families, and whole congregations to celebrate our Mother and draw us into the mysteries. We celebrate a Mary who lived 2,000 years ago and one who has appeared to people over the centuries. One such apparition is Our Lady of Fatima in Portugal. I am traveling there September 26th to October 6th. This marks 100 years since Mary appeared to three children. The tour also includes Lourdes, France, and parts of Spain. Contact me for more details.
